

Elvis returns for another SJ Concert in the Park performance

ST. JOHNS - Concert in the Park audiences who've loved Matt King's Elvis Presley Tribute Show the past 11 seasons are waiting for the "Hound Dog" to return again. King "is" Elvis in the Sept 23 show at the William E. Tennant Performance Shell located in the St. Johns City Park. The show begins at 7 p.m.; no admission charge.

"We're pleased to have Matt King back again as Elvis," says Performance Shell Committee Chairperson Bill Tennant. "Our audiences love him! His appearance is one of the most popular of the season each year – a show that everyone thoroughly enjoys!"

A Michigan resident, King has travelled all over the United States and Europe entertaining audiences with his unique ability to bring to the "King" to life via his moves, mannerisms, looks and costuming - and, of course, that distinctive voice. He took first place at the 2014 Windsor King Festival, and also captured first in the 2014 Midwest Elvis Competition. Those honors are in addition to numerous similar top-place finishes at Elvis events around the United States.

The weekly concerts are being presented under strict safety guidelines that have been established by the State of Michigan, the City of St. Johns and the Concert in the Park Committee. During these unprecedented times, the guidelines must be followed if the series is to be continued each week.

Wearing of Masks and Social Distancing are both required this year.

A decision will be made each week on whether the next concert can take place. Please check the Performance Shell Facebook Page or the Clinton Count Arts Council's Website at www.clintoncountyarts.org before coming each week. Also, please note that the Lions Club Food Trailer will not be at the concerts this fall. Concerts will be held each Wednesday evening, rain or shine, through the month of September.

"Concert in the Park" is sponsored by the Clinton County Arts Council and the City of St. Johns. The Clinton County Arts Council receives support from the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs and the National Endowment for the Arts.
